In Born For Life, midwife Sarah Murdoch shares her extraordinary journey as a witness to life's most profound moments. Through her honest and moving accounts, she invites us into the intimate and often hidden world of birth and death, offering a rare glimpse into the raw emotions and transformative power of human connection.

Sarah's story begins with her own birth, which was attended by a midwife who would later become her mentor. From that early experience, Sarah knew that she was destined to be a midwife herself. She went on to work in a variety of settings, from hospitals to birth centers to homes, and she has witnessed the full spectrum of human experience.

In Born For Life, Sarah shares stories of births that were joyous and miraculous, as well as births that were heartbreaking and tragic. She writes about the challenges of working in a profession that is often demanding and emotionally draining, and she shares her own experiences of loss and grief.

But through it all, Sarah's passion for her work shines through. She believes that every birth is a sacred event, and she is committed to providing compassionate and empowering care to her clients. She writes, "I believe that every woman has the right to a safe and respectful birth experience, regardless of her circumstances."
