Fighting for Freedom is a series of social studies readers that tells the stories of African Americans who have fought for freedom and equality in the United States.

The Books in the Series

The series currently consists of six books:

- Harriet Tubman: The Moses of Her People
- Frederick Douglass: The Lion Who Wrote His Own Freedom
- Sojourner Truth: Ain't I a Woman?
- Martin Luther King, Jr.: A Dream of Freedom
- Rosa Parks: The Mother of the Civil Rights Movement
- Jackie Robinson: Breaking the Color Barrier

The Importance of the Series

The Fighting for Freedom series is an important addition to the social studies curriculum for several reasons.

- It tells the stories of African Americans who have made significant contributions to the United States.
- It helps students to understand the history of racism and discrimination in the United States.
- It inspires students to fight for justice and equality for all.

The Author

The Fighting for Freedom series was written by Tonya Bolden. Bolden is an award-winning author and historian who has written extensively about African American history.

Bolden's writing is clear, concise, and engaging. She brings the stories of these African American heroes to life in a way that is both informative and inspiring.

The

The Fighting for Freedom series is a valuable resource for social studies teachers and students. It is a well-written and engaging series that tells the important stories of African Americans who have fought for freedom and equality in the United States.

I highly recommend this series to anyone who is interested in learning more about African American history or who is looking for a way to inspire students to fight for justice and equality.
