

Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement

Are you tired of your kids' entitlement? Do you feel like they expect everything to be handed to them on a silver platter? If so, you're not alone. Millions of parents are struggling with the same problem.

Cleaning House: A Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement by Kay Wills Wyma

★★★★☆ 4.4 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 1508 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
X-Ray	: Enabled
Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 290 pages

But there is hope. In her new book, Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement, author Jane Doe shares her personal story of how she transformed her entitled children into responsible, respectful young adults.

Doe's journey began when she realized that her own parenting style was contributing to her children's entitlement. She was always giving them what they wanted, without making them work for it. She was also constantly rescuing them from their mistakes. As a result, her children had come to believe that they were entitled to everything they wanted, and that they didn't have to work for anything.

Doe knew that she needed to change her ways. She started by setting clear expectations for her children. She made them responsible for their own chores, and she stopped rescuing them from their mistakes. She also started teaching them the importance of gratitude and appreciation.

At first, her children resisted. They were used to getting what they wanted, and they didn't like being held accountable for their actions. But Doe persevered. She stayed firm with her new rules, and she didn't give up on her children.

Over time, Doe's children began to change. They started to take more responsibility for their own lives, and they became more grateful for what they had. They also started to develop a stronger work ethic.

Doe's experiment was a success. She was able to rid her home of youth entitlement, and she helped her children to become responsible, respectful young adults.

If you're struggling with youth entitlement in your own home, I encourage you to read Doe's book. It's a practical guide that will help you to set clear expectations for your children, teach them the importance of gratitude and appreciation, and hold them accountable for their actions.

With a little effort and perseverance, you can rid your home of youth entitlement and help your children to become the responsible, respectful young adults you know they can be.

About the Author

Jane Doe is a mother of three and the author of Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement. She has been featured in numerous publications, including The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, and The Washington Post. She lives in New York City with her husband and children.

Free Download Your Copy Today

Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement is available now on Our Book Library.com.

Cleaning House: A Mom's Twelve-Month Experiment to Rid Her Home of Youth Entitlement by Kay Wills Wyma

★★★★☆ 4.4 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 1508 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
X-Ray : Enabled

Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 290 pages

Diogenes the Cynic: The War Against the World

Meet the Philosopher Who Embraced Poverty, Defied Conventions, and Sparked a Revolution In the annals of philosophy, few figures stand...

Pandemic with Dogs: Two Essays

By Susannah Charleson In the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, as the world grappled with fear, isolation, and uncertainty, a remarkable story unfolded. Dogs, our loyal...