Florence was a young woman from a wealthy family, while Guy was a poor farmer. They met at a dance and fell in love at first sight. However, their families did not approve of their relationship and tried to keep them apart.

Florence and Guy refused to be separated. They ran away together and got married in secret. They lived a happy life together for many years, despite the fact that they faced many challenges.

In 1914, Guy was drafted into the army to fight in World War I. Florence stayed home and waited for him.

Guy was wounded in battle and sent home. He was paralyzed from the waist down. Florence took care of him and helped him to adjust to his new life. Guy went to night school and got a degree in accounting.

After Guy graduated, he got a job as an accountant and worked hard to support his family. They bought a house and had two children. They lived a happy life together until Guy died in 1957.

Florence never remarried. She lived a long and happy life, raising her children and grandchildren.
